Scorecard Background & Information

The Scorecard reflects the status of the six Core Elements necessary for transparent and efficient property market development. Each Core Element includes three Lead Indicators that are further divided into Sub-Indicators. Colors signify the strength of institutions that support market development – very strong, strong and weak. No color indicates that institutions are very weak. Gray indicates more information is needed for an objective determination.

Bundle of Rights

Survey Question

SQ1 What is the bundle of rights (group of rights such as occupancy, use and the right to sell or lease) associated with both residential and commercial property ownership? Weak – freehold, leasehold, customary and mailo (old British feudal system never fully abolished); multiple land tenure systems lead to inconsistency and confusion.

1.2 Registries

Core Question:	Does a reliable property registry exist including cadastral, title and mortgage lien information? No – Very Weak, most land in Uganda has never been demarcated or surveyed and has no documentary evidence to support ownership claims.

1.2.1 Cadastral Information

Status – Weak – Land Information System is currently being converted from manual operations.

Survey Questions

- SQ 2 Is cadastral information (information about the dimensions and location of land parcels) accessible to the public? No
- SQ 3 Is zoning/permitted use information included are use regulations respected and enforced? No
- SQ 4 Are Geographic Information Systems (GIS) including Global Positioning Satellite (GPS) information used to create and update the registry? Yes, new GIS system launched in May 2006.

1.3 Formal Ownership

Core Question:	Do citizens understand and trust property rights institutions and avoid the informal sector? No – Very Weak – Only 18% of land owners have registered titles or certificates of ownership.

Survey Questions

1.3.1 Land

SQ 8 What is the status of land ownership? Very Weak – poor land use planning practices have led to inappropriate decisions in the allocation of land use resulting in land degradation, pollution, uncontrolled urban development, conflicts over land use and reduced land productivity.

In-Country Assessment Information (as of January 2010)

Field Question (FO) 1. What is the actual status of property rights and ownership for citizens?

Laws relating to land management and administration are weak and outdated. In addition, land is subject to different uses and thus its management falls under different sector institutions that have limited human and financial resources. Furthermore, decentralization has introduced new institutions aimed at improving service delivery at grassroots level, but these are beset with weak implementation due to lack of adequate professional expertise, as well as poor coordination between central and local Governments. Inadequate sector coordination has also had negative impact on land use, just as weak inter-sector and district coordination has resulted in contradictory land use patterns.

FQ 2. What is the actual experience of transferring a property?

There is lack of awareness by the majority of people both in urban and rural areas of the laws governing land use and management. In addition, there is resistance and non-adherence to existing control laws and regulations. The principal laws currently in force are the Land Act 1998 and the Town and Country Planning Act 1964, the Survey Act 1964, and the Registration of Titles Act 1964. The principle enshrined in the Act enables bona fide and lawful occupants to obtain legal interests in the registered land they occupy. However, this has not been implemented due to:

Resistance of the registered owners against what they consider to be expropriation of their property rights and interests

Lack of understanding by both the bona fide and lawful occupants who are not aware of the present provisions and still think they are at the mercy of the registered owners

Inadequate capacity in the relevant institutions such as the Ministry of Water, Lands and Environment, District Land Boards, District Land Offices, District land tribunals and land committees

Lack of sufficient funds under the Land Fund to enable bona fide and lawful occupants purchase reversionary interests from the registered owners

Certain aspects of the Land Act have not been implemented due to large resource implications.

FQ 3. What are the actual housing conditions for all groups including the poor, minorities and other marginalized groups?

Government will ensure that women, youth, the poor, the disabled and other disadvantaged groups will receive equal treatment as the rest of the citizens of this country. In particular, Government will ensure adequate and effective integration of gender concerns in all programs geared towards the implementation of this policy. The issues to consider will include the following:

Security of tenure especially for women, the poor and the disabled

Encourage participation of women and youth in land use decision-making, especially where they are directly or indirectly affected.

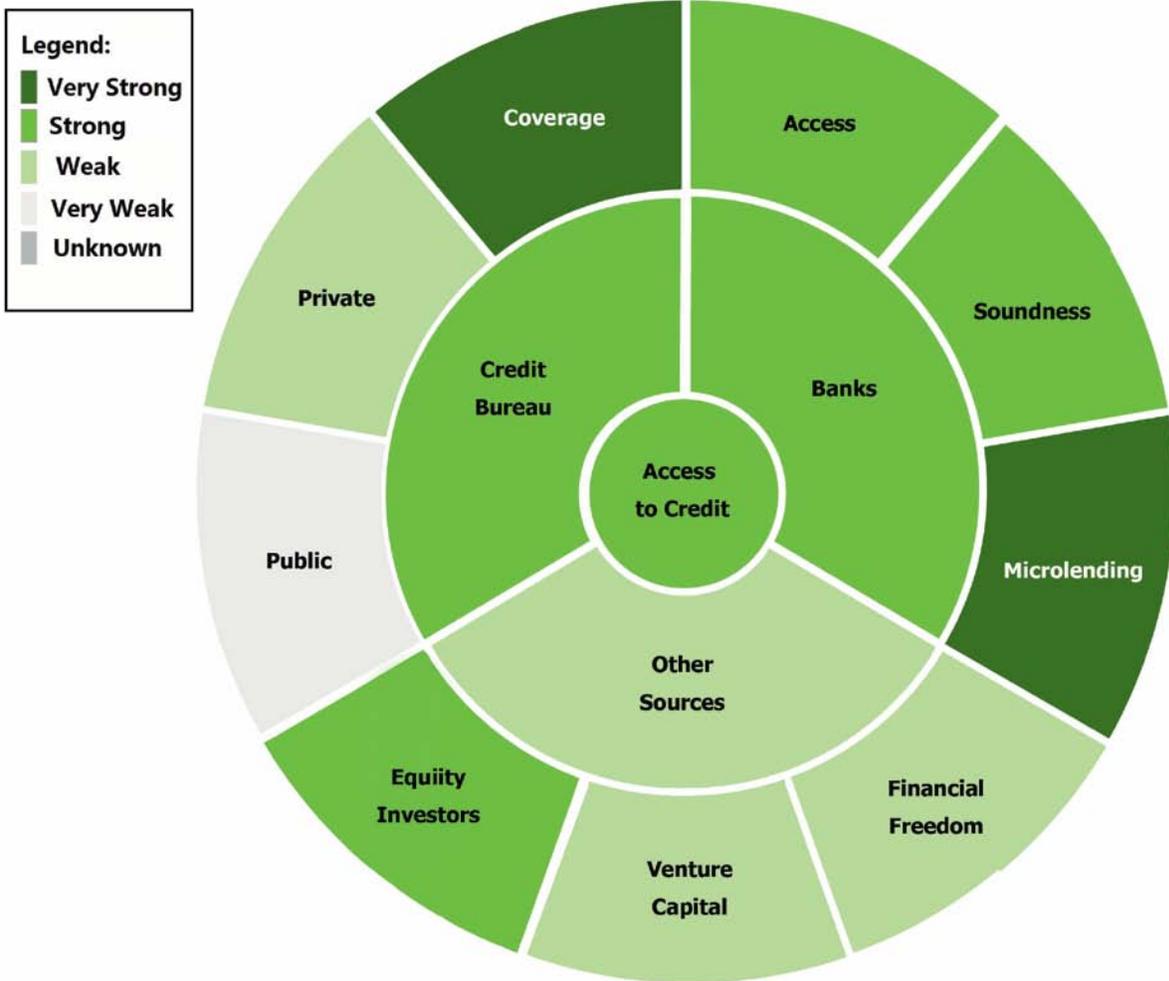

Promote positive changes in cultures and attitudes to support sustainable land use, equitable distribution and sharing of benefits.

Develop programs to improve skills of the poor so that they can make a gainful living from their land.

Marginalized groups of people are more likely to use land unsustainably and should therefore be given special attention. There will be no discrimination against people living with debilitating illnesses.

2. Access to Credit

Goal – An efficient, transparent financial sector that provides a broad range of citizens with access to multiple forms of competitive credit so that they can start businesses, build wealth, and purchase property

2.1 Banks

Core Question: Are traditional banking services robust and extensive enough to serve the needs of the population to help them build wealth and purchase property? Yes - Strong, the authorities have introduced several reforms to strengthen public financial management and deepen financial markets.

Access

2.1.1 How easy is it to obtain a bank loan? Strong – Ranking 60th out of 144; Score 3.0 out of 7

Soundness

2.1.2 How sound are the country's banks? Strong – Ranking 68th out of 144; Score 5.2 out of 7

2.3 Credit Bureau

Core Question:	Is comprehensive credit information available through public and private credit bureaus? Yes– Strong. Since Central Bank launched a credit bureau in December of 2008, it has been improved a lot even though public credit registry coverage is still not available now.

Overall Ranking 40th out of 185

Coverage

2.3.1 What is the depth of information available in credit bureaus? Very Strong – Score – 5 out of 6 with a higher number indicating more information is available

Public

2.3.2 What is the extent of public credit registry coverage? Very Weak – not available

Private

2.3.3 What is the extent of private credit registry coverage? Weak –3.7% of adults

In-Country Assessment Information (as of January 2010)

FQ 4. How available are mortgage loans for purchasing property, who is the typical user and what are the prevailing trends?

Uganda's housing finance sector has substantially grown from one government owned institute to 4 commercial banks and 1 Micro-finance Deposit taking Institution. The sector is however small in relation to the housing needs of the country and it has principally been serving the middle and higher income earners. The average mortgage loan size issued by commercial banks is between UShs 60 (US $ 34,000) and 80 million (US $ 46,000), an amount too high for the low income earners.

Absence of adequate housing finance for the last 30 years and the weak foundations made by consecutive governments in building the country's housing industry have greatly crippled the formal private sector to such an extent that their contribution to housing delivery has been relatively insignificant. The housing finance sector is still facing a major challenge of lack of long-term funding schemes within the domestic banking system and the nascent capital markets.

Out of 5.2 million households in the country, only 0.68% can access mortgage loans through commercial banks, 19.95% can access housing micro-finance loans through Micro-finance Deposit taking Institutions, 7.2% can access loans from Micro Finance Institutions and Savings and Credit Cooperatives, 10.3% can only access loans through Savings and Credit Cooperatives only and 62.3% have no access to financial services.

Housing demand in Uganda has been constrained by inadequate financial resources for both real estate developers and end buyers. The low income levels of most Ugandans have also constrained the demand side of housing.

FQ 5. What are the interest rates, term and loan-to-value ratios for available mortgages?

All the 5 commercial banks in the housing finance sector offer the following mortgage products:

(i) house construction, (ii) house completion, (iii) home improvement, (iv) purchasing of houses, (v) equity release and (vi) refinancing mortgage.

LTVs range from 70 to 80% for 20 year loans. Interest rates range between 16 and 19%. Housing Finance Bank and DFCU Bank are the largest players in the market and they partly source their long-term funds from the National Social Security Fund. Through initiatives pioneered by Stromme Foundation and Habitat for Humanity Uganda, Micro Finance Institutions are to start a housing micro-finance product in which they will lend to low income earners up to US$ 8 million (US $ 4,600), payable between 2 to 5 years.

FQ 6. Are there any informal barriers to borrowing such as for women or minorities?

Women, Youth, the Poor, persons with disabilities and other disadvantaged groups will be accorded equal opportunities. The government will ensure that women, youth, the poor, the disabled and other disadvantaged groups will receive equal treatment as the rest of the citizens of this country. In particular, Government will ensure adequate and effective integration of gender concerns in all programs geared towards the implementation of this policy. The issues to consider will include the following:

Security of tenure especially for women, the poor and the disabled

Encourage participation of women and youth in land use decision-making, especially where they are directly or indirectly affected.

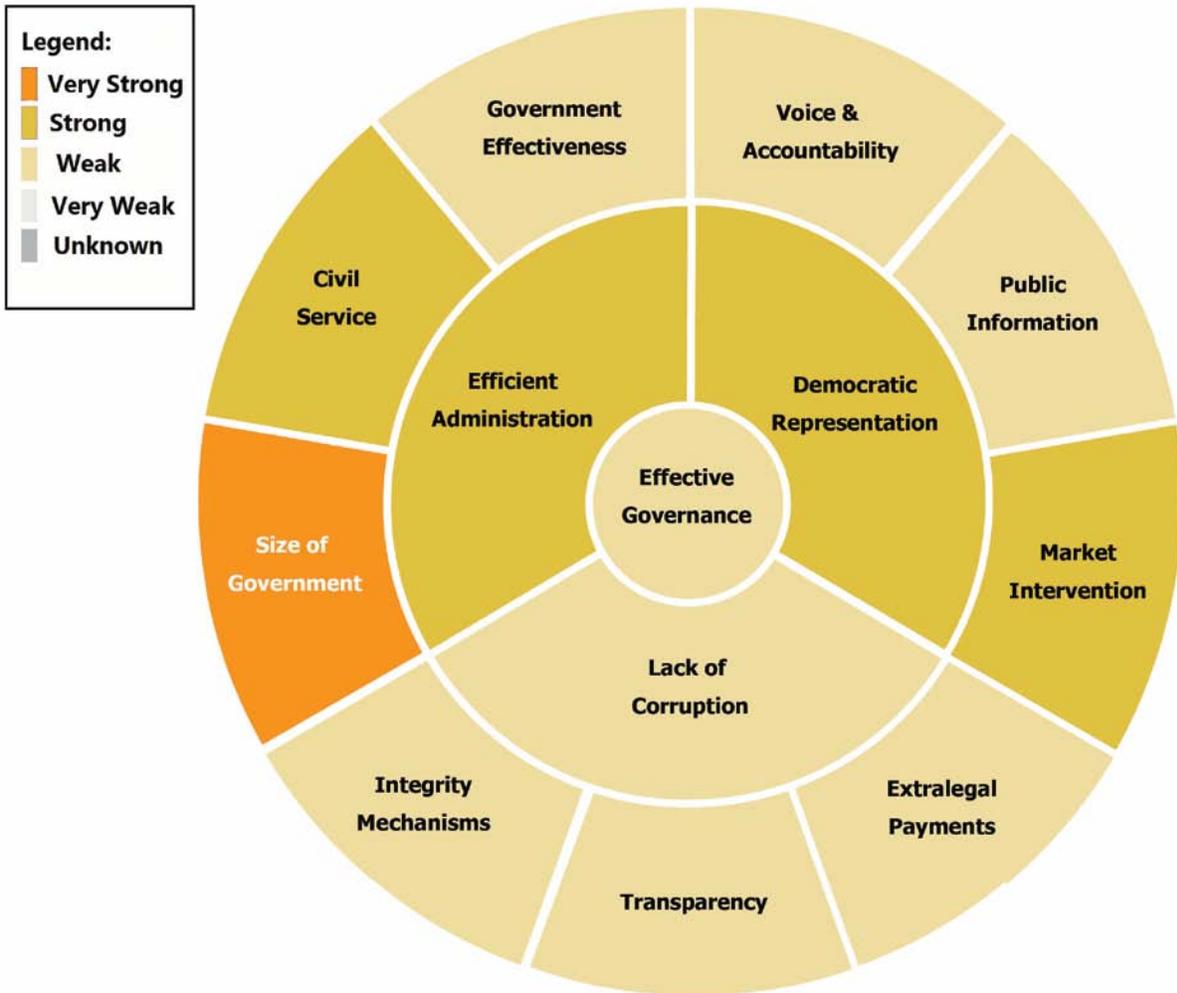

Promote positive changes in cultures and attitudes to support sustainable land use, equitable distribution and sharing of benefits.

Develop programs to improve skills of the poor so that they can make a gainful living from their land.

Marginalized groups of people are more likely to use land unsustainably and should therefore be given special attention. There will be no discrimination against people living with debilitating illnesses.

In-Country Assessment Information (as of March 2009)

FQ 6. What is the actual experience of practitioners in dealing with the government?

Currently, most land in Uganda has never been demarcated or surveyed and has no documentary evidence to support ownership claims. Only 18% of land owners have registered titles or certificates of ownership. The existing records in the land registry are manually managed and in very poor state. As a result, service delivery is very slow and cumbersome, and title searches and/or verification of claims is frustrating. The process is prone to mistakes and occurrences of fraud, which makes land assets unreliable and risky as collateral security for loans. The Land Registration business process fails to provide economy in handling information that the majority of rural land holders and urban market participants need to make informed decisions.

These failings of the land registration system in Uganda are a significant barrier to investment and the development. The private sector deals with substantial transaction cost due to the absence of clear and reliable information in the form of title, certificate of occupancy or ownership that can transform land into a tradable asset or capital. The high transaction costs are a function of inadequate legislative framework, archaic land information management systems, low administrative capacity and apathetic mindset of local land officials.

From the perspective of land developers and private investors, the existing land tenure restrictions and the failures of the land registration system indicate land sector reforms are needed to secure property rights. Improved procedures that introduce transparent land administration will assist developers in efficiently assessing market risk and prioritizing investment options that comply with private as well as public development aspirations.

Market Stability

FQ 9. How stable has the property market been over the last several years?

Despite the global economic slowdown, office development in Kampala is continuing, albeit at a slower pace, with approximately 35,000 sq m expected to come to the market by October 2010. The entry of new players in the financial services and telecoms sectors had seen a steady increase in demand. However, the financial slowdown has seen the number of commercial sales transactions fall significantly. Banks are adopting more stringent lending criteria and buyers are holding out for a drop in prices.

Kampala's residential market has seen rapid growth with the construction of various housing estates and apartment blocks/townhouses in both the older residential areas and the new suburbs being opened up. Despite this increase in supply, there still remains a shortage of affordable, well located, good quality houses.
